

Hyuncheol Kim

I earned a doctorate in sociology of education from Yonsei University in Korea and finished a doctoral program in Sociology from Keio University in Japan. I am working for National Youth Policy Institute in Korea and researching mainly about the policy and strategy that promote youth's hands-on activities including career education more effectively.

I basically prefer field studies, especially concerned with the network of community and youth participation in community.